FACTS AND STATS:

Josh Jensen received a Bachelor's of Fine Art degree at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and his Master's in Counseling from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary. In his internships, he provided care for clients with substance dependence, dual diagnoses, and marital/pre-marital counseling. Josh's training emphasized helping those with depression and anxiety, he continues to be passionate about both.

Josh has extensive experience helping those with developmental disabilities, and he enjoys working with adults and adolescents with Autism and Asperger's. As a Marriage Family Therapist, Josh is excited about working with all aspects of family development including work with couples, parents, children, and adolescents through various transitions and difficulties. Josh enjoys helping clients integrate spiritual concerns and faith with the work of therapy.
