FACTS AND STATS:

Dave Verhaagen earned his Ph.D. in psychology from UNC-Chapel Hill and has been a licensed psychologist in Charlotte for more than 16 years. He is also one of fewer than 5% of psychologists in the country to be board-certified (American Board of Professional Psychology) in a specialty area. In the past, he has been the clinical director for three mental health agencies, including the largest of its kind in the state. He is the author or co-author of six books, including Parenting the Millennial Generation and Therapy with Young Men, and he is a popular speaker at national, state, and regional conferences. He's been featured seven times in USA Today, as well as in Newsweek and newspapers around the country. He also writes Shrinkblog (shrinkblog.blogspot.com) a pop culture blog that draws thousands of visitors a year.

In his practice, Dave helps young men (ages 16-24) excel in their lives. He sees clients who struggle with behavioral, emotional, or substance issues. One of his specialties is helping prepare young men who have struggled in high school get ready for college or helping those who have already had trouble in college develop plans so they can successfully return. He also enjoys helping young men find their own sense of purpose and direction.
